

Sec Staff in Easter egg hunt

Exams are due to start next week. The primary department (up to 15yrs old) has three terms. Last week the Ministry of Education announced that we were going back to having two terms!! Just when exams are about to start! Within 2 days of that announcement came another...we were back to three terms!! Life isn't dull here; we never know what will happen next!

We've also had the plumber in the house. After changing the shower taps Mags reckoned she could hear water. It turned out we had a burst pipe. Finding it involved breaking a tile in the shower. They'd no sooner done that when another part of the pipe burst. At the same time we had a burst pipe in the wash room and that one took 2 days to find. We had water in the house but weren't able to use the washer for a day or so. All the knocking out of walls etc left a lot of rubble. The puppy was in his element running off with bits of plaster, brick, pipes etc. I think he was locked out of the way before too long. He's also living up to his name of Splash as he runs out in the rain at any opportunity. The other animals are all doing well and enjoy having us round more.

Please pray for Arlan Frick, a 16 yr old who has been kidnapped by the EPP (terrorist group) up in the North. He has been missing for a month and his parents have already paid $50 000 in food for his return,

Many thanks for all your prayers and support.

God Bless,
Lots of love,
Gwen and Mags xx
